

FCC:

Allowing further consolidation of media outlets will only serve the function of allowing those corporations to limit the amount of accountability that the media has to the public.

This is not in the public's best interests. Only through cross-referencing many different news accounts can the public gain any concept of the truth in journalism.

Please know that a significant portion of the public would urge that the rules set in place for keeping companies from owning more than one media outlet in a given area should not be repealed.

Thank you for your time.

Bryan Parker